Robert Swintz and Grace Goodman Will Take Leading Roles —Offer Prize For Best Name Given Play.

Robert Swintz, as Robert Norwood, and Grace Goodman, as Jane Caldwell, will take the leading parts in the moving picture play to be put on by the Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of advertising South Bend, its people, and industries.

About 5,000 people will appear in the reel. The picture will not be merely the black and white variety, but will be beautifully tinted following the actual scenes and characters in every detail as nearly as possible. There will be absolutely no evidences of Amateur work when the reel appears. Each scene will be enacted a number of times until a picture is gotten which will satisfy the photographer in every particular.

The selection of characters was begun Wednesday morning and will be completed by night. Mr. Swintz and Miss Goodman are to select the people who will appear as their respective parents. Besides these, little George Hammerschmidt will take the part of the Little Jack. H. G. Spaulding, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce will also appear.

Everything is now practically arranged for, but the name of the play. The Chamber of Commerce offers $5 in gold for the person sending in the best suggestion for a name for the reel.

The actual picture taking begins Thursday afternoon. The work will probably be completed by Friday night. Among the scenes will be shown students at Notre Dame going on the campus. The picture will be taken at 3 p. m. Thursday. At 3:30 p. m. the same afternoon a picture will be taken of the St. Mary's students in a tennis game. Friday morning a folk dance will be enacted by eight couples of girls between the ages of 6 and 10 years in front of the college building at St. Mary's. The whole school will appear in the background witnessing the dance. Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock the lawn party will be snapped on the grounds of Tippecanoe place, with the residence in the background. About 50 high school students will take part. It is in this scene that the heroine is abducted. At 2 o'clock the wedding scene will be taken in front of the First Christian church. In this picture there will be about 100 people all in evening dress, as the scene when shown will appear to have taken place in the evening. It will show the clergyman, the bride and the guests. The picture of the high school, including from 400 to 500 students will be taken later the same afternoon, probably about 3:45.

TWO WIVES CHARGE CRUEL TREATMENT; ASK DIVORCE

Husband Locked One Out of House She Asserts — Spouse Got Drunk.

Two suits for absolute divorce were filed in the St. Joseph superior court on Wednesday, both alleging practically the same facts. Mrs. Lily Hepper filed the first suit against her husband, Harry Hepper. Mrs. Hepper alleged cruelty as the basis for divorce. Her husband was in the habit of coming home drunk she asserted, he frequently struck and choked her and often tore her clothes and used her brutally. Mrs. Hepper stated that early one evening when she and her young daughter were coming from the neighbors, her husband locked the door in her face and refused her admission into the house.

Mrs. Hepper asks for the custody of the two children and for $300 alimony. The couple had been married for seventeen years. Mrs. Nora H. Stamm also filed a petition for divorce with the superior court on Wednesday. Mrs. Stamm accuses her husband, Fred G. H. Stamm, with being cruel. He often struck her, she asserted, and his actions made a continuation of their married life intolerable. The couple were married a little over two years and there is one child, the custody of which the mother asks.

FLAMES STOP ATTEMPTS TO RESCUE MEN

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) help from Beckley, another point on the Virginia road, but the Maryland crew in charge of the federal mine rescue car, were the first to arrive. It was then nearly 6 o'clock. The crew set to work manfully, but were greatly hampered by the flames which were crawling over the men and children who crowded the entrances and endangered their lives near the flame-belching fissures.

It finally became necessary to fence in the mines and station armed guards to drive the people back. The rescuers cleared No. 6 mine and then started to reach No. 5 through the connecting walls of No. 6. The work is progressing slowly and there is no likelihood that the workers can reach the imprisoned men until Wednesday afternoon.

Many Nationalities. The complete list of the dead could not be obtained Tuesday night. They are composed of Americans, white men, Negroes, Slavs, Hungarians and Italians.

Dan Jones, white, and a Hungarian, whose name could not be learned, escaped unscathed from No. 5. They were literally blown to safety. Four of the dead taken from No. 6 were F. J. Lingertman, A. W. Grougman, Carl Warden and another unknown man, all white.

Only three of the company's six mines were being operated, with a total force of about 500 men. No one was injured in mine No. 3 where 225 men were working. They were snuffed by the shock of the explosion, but they hurried to the shaft elevator, screaming in their frantic efforts to reach the surface.

The first report of the explosion was made to Gov. Hatfield Tuesday afternoon, and the chief executive with Chief Mine Inspector Earl Henry, Dr. W. J. McCullough, chief medical examiner under the workmen's compensation law, several newspaper men and others, left Charleston, W. Va., at 5:45 p. m. for Deep Water where a special train was made up to take them to Eccles. This is the first serious accident since the workmen's compensation act went into effect on Oct. 1, last. The bodies of the victims will have to be borne under the act, and the widows, children and dependents cared for.

Is First Accident. The exploded mine was opened about five years ago by the present owners, the Guggenheim interests. This is their first accident since they started operation. Chief Inspector Henry of the state mines department, says that the last inspection of the mines was made on March 12. The report of the inspector stated he found considerable dust in the entries one and two of mine No. 5 and that he ordered the superintendent to sprinkle the mine. The report also shows that the inspector found some gas. It had been known as a gaseous mine and for that reason had fire bosses whose duty it was to inspect the workings every day, before either the day or night shift went to work.

The greatest mine disaster in the history of West Virginia was the Monongah explosion in 1907 when 366 lives were snuffed out.

REFUGEE TRAIN LOST: AMERICANS TELL FRESH TALES OF JAIL HORRORS

In all such instances the women behaved with commendable courage, barricading their homes and going about their duties with a rifle close at hand.

Mrs. H. Riley, wife of an American who was employed as a railway conductor on the National lines, was one of the refugees. She told the following story:

"Practically all of the American men were taken from their ranches in the southwestern part of this state (Vera Cruz) and put in prison. With the men in the way the foraging bands would wander through the ranch houses at will, plundering them of all valuable possessions. The safes in the ranch offices were generally cast into ox-drawn carts and carried to the nearest settlement where they were dynamited. Then would begin a squabble among the men over a division of the spoils. These quarrels often resulted in murder. I know of three Americans being murdered in this manner. For a time mob rule held sway there and it may have been a good thing that the Americans were behind the protection of stone walls, even if these were prison walls.

"When we came through Colonia Medina the women were all headed in a coal car and the men were placed upon freight 'flat' cars. The coal cars were meant to give us protection for they had wooden walls sheathed with sheet iron which would have acted as armor against rifle bullets directed against the train. Many of the women had left their homes upon a minute's notice leaving all their possessions behind. Some were in their bare feet. A few of the children were clothed so scantily they might as well have been stark naked."

ULYSSES GRANT MANNING IS SOUTH BEND'S MAYOR

Absence of Mayor Keller Throws Mantle of Authority Upon Controller For Day or So.

Its "Mayor Ulysses Grant Manning; acting mayor, that is—due to the absence from the city of Mayor Frederick Wilhelm Keller, who is in Indianapolis attending Mayor Joe Bell's state wide assemblage of municipal executives. "In case I should go to the ball game this afternoon," said the acting mayor Wednesday, "I suppose the mantle of mayor would fall upon City Clerk Rostiser."

"In that event," says Rostiser, "you can bet I'd be mayor, and what would happen in South Bend would be a caution." Rostiser declares that he would immediately appoint a committee of press censors.

A little effort made to get Acting Mayor Manning to kick the lid off during the remainder of the mayor's absence, fell flat. He declines to inaugurate any new policies. Besides Mayor Keller is expected to return Tuesday night and the acting mayor wants to return undisturbed to his office of city controller.

DECLARES CITY COURT ASSUMES FUNCTIONS OF COLLECTING AGENT

George Locsmandy, 917 S. Carroll st., was on trial Wednesday charged with attempting to evade payment of a board bill which he admitted owing a former landlady, Mrs. John Smith, 732 W. Water st.

Judge Warner gave the defendant a month to pay up, asserting that during that time he would take the case under advisement before giving judgment.

D. D. Nemeth, attorney for Locsmandy, insisted on having judgment immediately. He held that it had not been proved that his client had attempted to avoid payment of the bill, and asserting that the complaining witness was using the court as an agency to secure a more speedy collection of the bill. The court admitted that there was little evidence against the man, but thought that it would be best to give him a month to square the bill.

Although Locsmandy asserted he would settle in the next two weeks, Nemeth declared he would advise his client to withhold payment of the bill pending the decision of the court. Judgment will be given May 25.
